ARTIST STATEMENT

I create portraits where textile patterns, text, and human forms coexist as equals. Every element is hand-painted, from intricate lace textures to geometric fabric designs and the figures themselves. In selected works, handwritten text introduces an additional layer of personal mark-making.

My practice explores how pattern can function as both decoration and structure, framing the figure or dissolving into the background. The grid structures that appear in some pieces serve as compositional anchors and metaphors for the social, cultural, and personal frameworks that shape how we see and are seen.

My subjects are often contemplative, their faces partially obscured by sunglasses or turned away from direct view. This creates a subtle psychological distance, shifting the focus from individual identity to the formal relationships between figure, pattern, and space. The portraits become studies in composition as much as representations of people.

Ultimately, I use traditional portraiture as a way to explore abstraction: how the decorative can be structural, and how the accumulation of distinct visual elements can form something cohesive and compelling.

Working with ink on paper and acrylic on canvas, my work embodies portraiture as celebration, pattern as language, and presence as power.

ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Ini Oluwa (b.1994), with the birth name Inioluwa Aboluwarin is a self-taught visual artist from Lagos, Nigeria.

Ini has had both international and local exhibitions, including one with Augusta Savage Gallery in New York, and a debut solo in 2023 in Lagos, Nigeria; a multi-sensory exhibition titled “Fountainhead”, featuring 100 paintings by the artist.

Ini quit his tech job for professional studio practice in 2016, and currently lives and works from his private studio in Lagos, Nigeria
